Massive fish kill from Ky. distillery fire has arrived on local waters

By MARK CAMPBELL

Officials from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife have finished gathering the information they will need to assess overall fish kill numbers from last week's bourbon warehouse fire in Woodford County but those exact numbers and the impact on the fishery may not be known for several weeks.

Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife has spent four days observing impact but will need weeks to calculate damage

The state wildlife agency said data entry and analysis could take several weeks.

The Kentucky Energy and Environment Cabinet said the "alcohol plume" from bourbon runoff at the Beam Suntory's warehouse near Versailles, Kentucky, extended down the Kentucky River, which at its end snakes its way through Carroll County before emptying into the Ohio River at Carrollton.

Fish and Wildlife said the plume of oxygen-depleted water several miles long killed fish and other aquatic life as it traveled downriver. The crews conducted counts from July 5 through July 8 and observed thousands of dead and distressed fish from Pool 3 near Frankfort, Kentucky, downstream to the confluence with the Ohio River near Carrollton.

The affected water plume is expected to dissipate quickly as it moves from the Kentucky River into the much larger and faster moving Ohio River. Residents and other observers along the lower Kentucky River and Ohio River downstream of Carrollton may see dead fish, which should decompose and sink within a few days.

The first wave of those dead fish started showing up locally Sunday,

FISH KILL: The impact of a Kentucky bourbon warehouse fire that burned or spilled 45,000 barrels of alcohol into the Kentucky River can now be seen — and smelled — in the Courierarea, as thousands of fish killed by oxygen deprivation when a 23-mile plume from Beam Suntory distillery in Woodford County, Kentucky, spread down the Kentucky River to its confluence with the Ohio River at Carrollton, Kentucky. Dead fish from the kill had worked their way on down the Ohio River to Milton, Kentucky by Monday night. Fish carcasses litter the Milton Boat Ramp Tuesday (above and inset). Local resident Missy Carter (left) said the fish are creating quite a stink but she'll still fish the Ohio River for fun because she never eats the fish she catches anyway. Study shows 1M Indiana acres in cover crops for '18

By CAMDEN CHAFEE
Goshen News

GOSHEN — According to the Indiana State Department of Agriculture, there has been a large increase in the number of farmers using cover crops in Indiana. Known for their environmental benefits, Indiana farmers have planted more than one million acres of cover crops in 2018, covering 32,000 more acres than the previous year, the state agricultural department said.

Cover crops, which are crops (usually wheat) planted alongside crops being harvested, are used to keep soil in place and prevent erosion. Using cover crops also lowers the cost of fertilizer and heavy machinery.

New Paris resident, Keith Miller has farmed since the spring of 1972 and is a strong advocate of cover crops and no-till farming.

"I have been using cover crops and no-till farming since 1973. I just wish I would've started sooner." Miller said.

No-till farming is when the farmer does not use a plow or disc harrow to turn up the soil. The object is to minimally disturb the soil when planting.

Of Miller's 350-acre farm, he practices no-till and cover crop farming on approximately 270 acres of the farm, where he has planted corn and soybeans. Miller expects both the soy-

USDA warns spring rains will lower Indiana corn crop quality

Indiana

BLOOMINGTON — Agricultural officials say this year's Indiana corn crop is expected to be among lowest quality in three decades after planting delays caused by excessive spring rainfall. Greg Matli is a statistician with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service. He told The Herald-Times that the agency expects Indiana's 2019 corn to be the fifth-lowest in quality since 1986. Monday's report from the agency rates just 38 percent of Indiana's corn crop as currently of good to excellent quality. That comes after heavy spring rains significantly delayed the planting of corn and soybeans, likely lowering crop yields. Sadie Davis is the Purdue Extension office director in southwestern Indiana's Greene County. She called this spring's wet field conditions "astounding" and something Hoosier farmers haven't seen in a long time.

Trooper stops 105-mph truck, saves injured man

ANDERSON — A state trooper who stopped a truck going 105 mph in central Indiana is credited with giving lifesaving first aid to the passenger, who was bleeding from a gash in his neck. State police say Trooper Ron Huff was driving last Thursday in Madison County when the truck sped past. Huff stopped the truck and the driver ran to him, yelling that his friend was dying. Huff found a man in his 20s holding a towel to his neck to cover a 4-inch gash. Huff used gauze treated with a clotting agent and direct pressure to stop the bleeding before an ambulance arrived. The man had been helping renovate an unoccupied school when wall mirror broke, cutting his neck. He was released from a hospital Friday.

Teachers to do double duty driving buses

CARMEL — A suburban Indianapolis school district is signing up teachers to drive school buses before and after their usual time in the classroom. Roger McMichael, associate superintendent for Carmel Clay Schools, said the district has struggled for years to find drivers. He says that driving buses can be more convenient than other second jobs available to teachers. And, he said, a teacher's ability to manage a classroom can help on a bus. The Indianapolis Star reported Mike Bostic was the first teacher to take the district up on the offer. He's gone through an extensive licensing process, including weeks of training. The newspaper said five more teachers are now going through the training. The Indiana district's plans come as school districts throughout the U.S. struggle to find school bus drivers.

4-year-old boy dies after pulled from lake

HOBART — Police say a 4-year-old boy has died after being pulled unconscious from a lake in northwestern Indiana. The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported Hobart police and firefighters responded Tuesday evening to a report of a possible drowning at Robinson Lake. Detective Sgt. Nicholas Wardrip said the boy was listed in critical condition when taken to a hospital in Hobart, where he was later pronounced dead. The child was identified as being from Gary, but Wardrip said his name and cause of death would be released after an investigation by the Lake County coroner's office. Additional details about the circumstances of the child's death weren't released.

Funeral, 2 memorials for Holocaust survivor

TERRE HAUTE — The public is being encouraged to attend one of two memorial services for Holocaust survivor Eva Kor, who championed forgiveness even for those who carried out the Holocaust's atrocities. Eva Kor died last week at age 85 in Poland during an overseas trip for the Terre Haute, Indiana, museum she founded called the CANDLES Holocaust Museum and Education Center. Her funeral will be Sunday at Terre Haute's DeBaun Funeral Home, which has limited seating. The CANDLES museum is encouraging the public to attend either an Aug. 4 memorial at Indiana State University in Terre Haute or an Aug. 18 memorial at Butler University in Indianapolis. Kor was a Jewish native of Romania. Most of her family was killed at the Auschwitz concentration camp, but she and her twin sister survived.

Swastika tiles removed from IU building

BLOOMINGTON— Tiles with images of swastikas that were installed more than a century ago have been removed from the walls inside an Indiana University building. The school said the tiles at the Indiana University School of Public Health classroom building were installed before the swastika was adopted as the symbol of the Nazi Party. They're among tiles that include symbols from different cultures. The (Bloomington) Herald-Times reported an explanation of the symbol's history was posted near the tiles for many years, but some still found the tiles offensive. The school said the swastika tiles will be sanded to remove the symbol and remounted. The tiles were installed during the construction of the original IU Men's Gymnasium in 1917. It's now part of the IU School of Public Health classroom building.

Great Lakes levels surge; 2 set records

DETROIT — Water levels in two of the Great Lakes are the highest ever recorded. The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said Tuesday that Lakes Erie and Ontario last month reached their highest points since record-keeping began in 1918. Also setting a new mark was Lake St. Clair, which is part of the waterway linking Lakes Huron and Erie. Meanwhile, Lake Superior's level set a record for the month of June. Lakes Huron and Michigan missed setting a monthly record by less than an inch. Previous highs for June were reached in 1986 on Lakes Superior, St. Clair and Erie and in 2017 on Lake Ontario. Hydrologist Keith Kompoltowicz of the Army Corps said three months of abnormally wet weather have kept stream flows into the Great Lakes well above average.

Ex-prep coach gets 4 years for sex with teens

VALPARAISO — A former assistant diving coach at a northwest high school has been sentenced to four years in prison after pleading guilty to having sex with two 15-year-old female students and keeping partially nude photographs of each girl on his cellphone. The (Northwest Indiana) Times reported 20-year-old Jatwone London of Portage also was sentenced Tuesday in Porter County to serve one year on home detention upon his release from prison and spend another year on formal probation. The ex-Portage High School coach also will be required to register as a sex offender, undergo sex offender treatment and have no contact with the girls. London was charged last year. A civil lawsuit says the district failed to protect one of the female students from him, but the district denies the allegations.

Agency seeks hotel tax hikes in 2 Icounties

JEFFERSONVILLE — Tourism officials are seeking hotel tax increases in two southern Indiana counties to free up more money for marketing and promoting the region's attractions. SoIN Tourism staffers plan to meet Tuesday with the Clark County Council and the Floyd County Council on July 15 to make the case for raising their innkeeper's taxes from 4 percent to 6 percent. The two councils would have to pass substantially similar ordinances to increase the taxes. The News and Tribune reported the counties' innkeeper's taxes are among Indiana's lowest and are the sole source of the roughly $1.6 million SoIN Tourism receives annually. The agency's executive director, Jim Epperson, said increasing the taxes would give his group "the resources to help make the destination more competitive in the marketplace."

Purdue fundraising effort tops $2.5 billion

WEST LAFAYETTE — Purdue University said its multi-year fundraising initiative is now the biggest effort to raise funds in the school's history. The university said Tuesday that the "Ever True: The Campaign for Purdue University " campaign has generated $2.529 billion as of June 30, well above its $2.019 billion goal. The campaign was launched in 2012 and publicly announced in 2015. The fundraising effort is ending as Purdue celebrates its sesquicentennial and the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 moon landing where Purdue alumnus Neil Armstrong became the first human to walk on the moon. "Ever True" led to more than 1 million gifts from 209,551 donors across 113 countries. Of those gifts, 387 were of $1 million or more, and more than 740,000 were $100 or less.

Louisville Zoo awaits birth of 200-pound baby

LOUISVILLE — The Louisville Zoo is expecting the birth of a 200-pound baby. The Courier Journal reported staff is on 24-hour watch since a 33-year-old African elephant there entered her birthing window. Elephants have a long gestation period, and Mikki has been pregnant since October 2017. The zoo announced the pregnancy in March 2018. Now, she could go into labor within days. Staff is taking daily blood samples. The zoo said that when Mikki's progesterone levels drop, that will be a sign of impending birth. This will be Mikki's second baby. Her first baby, Scotty, was born in March 2007 and died from complications of colic. That's a common ailment for elephants and horses.

Off-duty deputy shot, killed driver in struggle

CLAY CITY — Kentucky State Police say an off-duty deputy has shot and killed a driver who had escaped authorities during an earlier chase. Trooper Scott Ferrell said Powell County deputies were searching for the vehicle involved in the chase Tuesday night when the off-duty deputy found it outside Clay City. He said the deputy approached the driver, who then attempted to disarm the deputy. He said the deputy shot the driver in the ensuing struggle. Authorities didn't immediately release the identities of those involved. State police are investigating.

Kentuckian gored in running of the bulls

FLORENCE — A bull tossed a Florence, Kentucky man in the air then impaled him in the leg during the world-famous running of the bulls in Pamplona, Spain. Aaron Froelicher, 23, was gored Sunday and also sustained a head wound. Froelicher's brother Andrew was nearby and the two went the hospital. Andrew Froelicher said his brother's wounds were cleaned and treated during a two-hour surgery. He said doctors want to keep Aaron on an antibiotic drip until Friday.

A MADISON KIWANIS TRADITION ENDS

The KIWANIS CLUB OF MADISON, has been a fixture at the Jefferson County 4-H Fair for over 60 years. The 2018 Fair marked the end of that tradition for the club. Club President Ted Sullivan said the proposal to cease operating the annual week-long operation of the Kiwanis Fish Stand was brought to the club's 5-member Executive Committee and then to the club's 11-member Board of Directors prior to polling the entire club's membership. This was a very difficult but necessary decision.

Factors leading up to this decision included the average age of the club's membership being 69, the health issues with several members, the conditions members had to work in while operating the Kiwanis Fish Stand, the amount of expense and time involved to obtain a net profit.

The Kiwanis Club of Madison wants to acknowledge and thank the many people who have come out to the Kiwanis Fish Stand for over 60 years supporting the club's fundraising efforts. Madison Kiwanis thanks you, and the youths benefitting thank you.

The Kiwanis Club really appreciates the assistance of the Madison Consolidated High School National Honor Society. These young citizens have worked at the Fish Stand and also at other Kiwanis events. The club is proud to be associated with this energetic and entertaining group. Thank you Krista Lee, MCHS NHS Sponsor, for your mentoring and leadership with these outstanding students.

There have been many businesses and organizations involved over the years that the club also wishes to recognize. Those are (but not limited to): Auxier Gas, BT&T, Crossman Fire & Safety, Fair Play Fire Co. #1, Harry's Stone Grill, Klosterman Bakery, Madison Kroger, Madison Courier, Milton Auto Sales, Summerville Foods, and the list goes on.

The individuals to thank is even a longer list that won't be attempted here. The list does include three individuals at the fairgrounds the Kiwanis Club wishes to recognize and give special thanks; Emerson Cole, Lonnie Mason, and Bill Cain.

The Kiwanis Club of Madison deeply regrets having to stop its annual appearance at the 4-H Fair and asks all our supporters to attend other Kiwanis fundraising events. In June come enjoy the annual Kiwanis Chicken Barbecue on the river front. Then in September the club will have a food booth at the 5-To-The 5 Vintage Hydroplane Race where Kiwanis Fish Sandwiches and Ribbon Fries will be available along with breakfast items in the morning.

Madison Kiwanis asks of you, "Please support the local Jefferson County 4-H program". 4-H is a great youth development program. Learn more at www.4-h.org .

What is Kiwanis?

"Kiwanis is a global organization of volunteers dedicated to improving the world one child and one community at a time." The Kiwanis Club of Madison was chartered on March 4, 1926 and has proudly served the communities of Jefferson County ever since. No money generated by fundraisers is used to run the club. Kiwanis Club members pay annual dues to support the Madison Kiwanis Club administration, Kiwanis Indiana District administration, and Kiwanis International administration.

The Kiwanis Club of Madison has been able to use the proceeds each year from the Fish Stand and other fundraisers to provide scholarships to graduating high school students at each of the three high schools in Jefferson County. With the Fish Stand no longer a fundraiser for the club, there will be more emphasis put into the club's other fundraisers.

There are accomplishments the Madison Kiwanis Club is very proud to have made, thanks to community support. The land at Broadway and Vaughn was purchased by the Kiwanis Club of Madison years ago with a bank loan that the club obtained and paid off. Today that land is known as Kiwanis Park. The club upgraded and donated that land, and the land the old tennis courts use to sit on, to the Madison School System. This was made possible through fundraising and private donations. The Veteran's Memorial in Springdale Cemetery was originally created in 1959 by the Kiwanis Club of Madison. Over the years since, the original monument deteriorated into sad disrepair. The Kiwanis Club of Madison took every available dollar they had, purchased a new monument in 2003 for nearly $10,000 to replace the original one. The local VFW and the American Legion both chipped in and provide benches and support. Today the monument displays all the names of those Jefferson County residents that gave the ultimate sacrifice for their country. Since 2003 only one name has had to be added.

Child, 3, dies after left in hot car on USI Evansville campus

By TORI FATER
and MARK WILSON
Evansville Courier & Press

EVANSVILLE — A 3-year-old child died Tuesday after being left in a car on the University of Southern Indiana campus, the Vanderburgh County Sheriff's Office said.

The office received a call of a medical emergency around 1:45 p.m. Sheriff Dave Wedding said the child's father, who has not been publicly named, was a USI employee.

The Vanderburgh County Coroner Steve Lockyear said the child who died was 3-year-old Oliver Dill.

Lockyear said the investigation is ongoing. The preliminary autopsy has been completed, he said, but pending the result of lab tests, a cause of death will not be released.

The father found his son in the car at USI and went to the USI Children's Learning Center for help.

Major Jason Ashworth of the Sheriff's Office said the child had been in the car since "relatively early this morning." The child was properly restrained in a child safety seat.

Wedding confirmed the child attended the Children's Learning Center, and investigators believe the father left the child in the car "accidentally for several hours."

President Ron Rochon released a statement to staff, students and retirees as well as media.

"As a parent and the president of the University of Southern Indiana, I am deeply saddened to inform you of the tragic death of a young child as a result of being left in a parked car on our campus. We are supporting the work of the Vanderburgh County Sheriff's Department in their investigation and thank USI Public Safety for their immediate response and that of the wonderful staff of the Children's Learning Center who provided aid."

He said the Children's Learning Center would be closed Wednesday and will assess to see if it will be open later in the week.

"We understand this will be inconvenient for parents who need childcare, but our thoughts right now are in supporting the individuals who are deeply affected by this tragedy and will need some time to process their grief to best support the children in their care," the statement read. "We will provide updates to parents on when the CLC will reopen as soon as possible.

"Our deepest condolences go out to the family of this young child. This is a loss no parent should bear. If you have a child in your life, please hug them tight and remember that counseling services are available if you need them."

The high temperature in Evansville Tuesday was 92, according to weather.com.

Temperatures can rise quickly inside a vehicle parked in the sun. The Mayo Clinic reports a car could heat as much as 20 degrees in only 10 minutes.

"Unfortunately, this isn't the only case like this," Ashworth said. "It may not be the last."

Last year, 52 children in the U.S. died of heat-related illnesses after being left in a hot vehicle.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration advises parents to make a habit of checking the front and back seats of a vehicle every time they get out and before locking the doors. Bystanders are told to call 911 right away if they see a child inside a car who is not responding or seems distressed.

Children at the daycare center were moved to another location during the investigation. Parents were notified and asked to pick up their children from another location on campus.

Evansville Police are investigating a separate case for possible child endangerment after a woman reportedly left three children inside a vehicle in 91-degree weather. Police reported the windows were rolled up and the vehicle was not running, though the doors were unlocked.

A witness heard children calling for help from the vehicle Friday afternoon and called 911. City police and Child Protective Services are investigating the case, but no one had been charged or cited as of this week.

Attorney for family of Indiana toddler who fell from cruise ship says cruise line was negligent

By LINCOLN WRIGHT
South Bend Tribune

An attorney for the Granger family whose 18-month-old daughter died after falling from a cruise ship is disputing what authorities said happened and claims Royal Caribbean Cruise Line was negligent in the toddler's death, citing a "hidden danger" on the ship.

Chloe Wiegand, the daughter of South Bend police officer Alan Wiegand, fell from the 11th deck of the Royal Caribbean ship Freedom of the Seas on Sunday. The ship was docked in San Juan and was scheduled to depart Sunday evening.

Initial reports from San Juan indicated the girl's grandfather, Salvatore Anello, lost his grip while holding the girl. A spokesman for the local Port Authority told CNN the girl was playing with her grandfather in a dining hall on the 11th deck. The dining area has large windows, and one pane was open, according to that report.

The grandfather sat the girl in the window and lost his balance, CNN quoted the Port Authority spokesman saying, and the girl fell to her death.

Ship was docked in San Juan at the time.

But at a Tuesday news conference, Michael Winkleman, a Miami attorney representing the family, said Anello was with Chloe in a children's play area and lifted her onto a wooden railing to look out the window. It was a large wall of windows and Anello could not tell the pane was open, Winkleman said.

Chloe went to bang on the glass like she does at her 10-year-old brother's hockey games, Winkleman said. He blamed the cruise line for having windows that passengers can open in a children's play area.

"This was a tragic accident that was preventable," he said. "This is a hidden danger."

The attorney said he didn't know why the original reports told a different account of the incident but pointed out that there is security footage from the ship he is waiting to receive.

When questioned about whether Anello should have put his granddaughter on the railing, Winkleman said it a was reasonable decision because Anello thought all the windows were closed. He gave the example of someone walking into a glass door thinking it is open.

Winkleman said windows aren't a problem in newer ships because they can't be opened by passengers, but the Freedom of the Seas was built in 2006. There should have been some form of warning sign that the windows could be open, Winkleman said.

The family is still in Puerto Rico waiting for Chloe's body to be released by authorities. That expected to happen Tuesday.

"They want to get home as quickly as possible," Winkleman said.

There was not a clear answer Tuesday if the family plans to file a civil lawsuit against the cruise line, but Winkleman said he sees grounds for a lawsuit.

"I do see a terrible tragedy that could have been prevented," he said.

•Fish kill

July 7 at the Kentucky River Lock No. 1 in Carrollton and another couple of miles downstream at the river's confluence with the Ohio River. By Monday night dead fish could also be seen downstream on the Ohio River at the boat ramp in Milton, Kentucky, across from Madison.

On Tuesday morning Missy Carter, of Milton, was watching two fishing poles just down river from the Milton boat ramp as the Queen of the Mississippi paddled downstream on the opposite side of the Ohio River near Madison, a bell attached to the tip of each rod to help signal a bite and piece of driftwood smoldering nearby from her overnight campfire.

Carter said she fishes the Ohio River often and first noticed the fish kill Monday night when she arrived there after work.

"I'm down here all the time and last night was the first time I've noticed them," Carter said of the dead carp, buffalo and catfish floating near the shoreline. "Last night when I came down I saw all the dead fish up by the boat ramp and thought, 'Wow, what's going on.' I was actually thinking about Googling it to find out what had happened."

Carter said it was a sad sight to see so many dead fish and that it must be really bad further upstream. However, that didn't stop her from trying to catch fish from the Ohio River.

"I don't eat the fish out of here anyway but if I was going to eat it? Yeah, it would concern me," Carter said. "But I don't eat them. I just throw them back."

The fire, believed to have been ignited by lightning, began Tuesday, July 2, and officials estimate about 45,000 barrels of bourbon were destroyed. The blaze was allowed to burn well into the weekend to consume as much of the alcohol as possible before it could travel about 100 yards into nearby Glenns Creek, a tributary of the Kentucky River.

beans and the corn to do well this year, despite the lack of dry weather. He attributes this year's successful crops to his use of no-till and cover-crop farming.

According to Miller, no-till farming and cover crops produce long-term benefits. It is also significantly cheaper to farm using cover crops, as less equipment is needed.

"It's just a great way to farm." Miller said.

Speaking of no-till farming in particular, Jeff Burbrink, Purdue Extension agricultural and natural resources educator, said that applying both the cover crop and no-till concepts to farming helps to keep organic matter in the fields and prevents dirty and muddy runoff drainage.

According to Burbrink, runoff drainage from farms often filter into large bodies of water, and can cause a build-up of silt and mud.

"Cover crops and no-till farming makes the agricultural system more sustainable." Burbrink said.

Ben Gavelek, communications director for the Indiana State Department of Agriculture, stated that since 2011, statewide use of cover crops has increased 434 percent. According to a report from the Elkhart County Soil and Water Conservation District, more than 10,000 farmers have used cover crops this season. Recently, Elkhart County has implemented incentive programs to get more farmers to explore no-till and cover-crop farming.

In Elkhart County, there has been a huge increase in the number of farmers using crop covers and no-till farming. Since 2016, crop cover adoption alone has increased more than 50 percent, according to a study conducted by the Indiana State Department of Agriculture.

"Cover crops and no-till farming are a really big deal. It affects people living in rural and suburban areas. Everyone should care about this." Miller said.

OBITUARIES

Richard Beatty

Richard Allen Beatty, 68, of Beavercreek, Ohio, died Saturday, July 6, 2019, in a boating accident.

He was born Jan. 13, 1951, in Cincinnati. He was a graduate of Centerville High School and attended The University of Dayton. He was an avid wine, food, car, music and vintage hydroplane enthusiast. Some might say he really enjoyed the finer things in life!

He is survived by his mother, Darlene Van Housen, of Centerville, Ohio; one sister Melanie Rohrig; one step-daughter, Cara Lacerenza; two granddaughters; one nephew; and a beloved friend whom Rick considered a son, Zach Wiley, of Mason, Ohio.

He was preceded in death by his father.

There will be a memorial at the Wheeling (West Virginia) Regatta Labor Day Weekend and a celebration of life service in Dayton within the next several weeks.

Online condolences can be sent at morgan-nay.com

John Boley

John Raymond Boley, 91, of Scottsburg, Indiana, died July 5, 2019, in Scottsburg.

He was born Nov. 27, 1927, in Louisville to Clyde Commodore Boley and Henrietta Agnes Maurer Boley. He was a graduate of Lexington High School and a veteran of military service. He formerly was employed in agricultural implement sales and was a farmer. He was a former Scott County commissioner, involved with 4-H club work and served on the REMC board. He was a member of the Scottsburg United Methodist Church.

He is survived by one son, Dennis Boley of Scottsburg; three daughters, Sharon Meneou of Jeffersonville, Devona Burns of Scottsburg, and Sandra K. Wildman of Madison, Indiana; one sister, Alice Boley Nichols of Lexington; nine grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents; his wife, Betty McCammon Boley; two sisters, Helen Boley Zunitch and Ida Mae Boley Whitlatch, and six brothers, William Boley, James Boley, Joseph Boley, Charles Boley, Clyde Commodore Boley Jr., and Robert Boley.

Visitation will be from noon to 3 p.m., Saturday, July 13, 2019, at the Scottsburg United Methodist Church.

There will be a private family service. Burial will be in the Scottsburg Cemetery.

Memorial donations may be made to the donor's choice c/o: Stewart & Hoagland Funeral Home in Scottsburg.

Cynthia Coker

Cynthia "Cindy" K. Prosser Coker, 67, died Thursday, June 20, 2019, at The Waters of Rising Sun in Rising Sun, Indiana.

She was born Jan. 25, 1952, in Eagan, Minnesota, where she spent much time in her early years in the great outdoors, ice fishing, ice skating and driving fast cars through several feet of snow. She graduated from Rosemount High School in 1970, and in 1974 moved to Colorado to study electronics from Red Rocks Community College. She remained in Colorado for 12 years where she met and married Wesley "Wes" J. Coker in 1984. They enjoyed a year in Belize, spending their days on the water and in the sun and started a diving resort. This was a harrowing experience for them both, narrowly getting to safety after 10 rebels invaded. She spent the last 20 years of her life enjoying the beautiful Ohio River in the surrounding areas of Dearborn County. She was a AHS Master Gardener and enjoyed being outdoors, taking any chance she could get to take a ride on a sailboat, and dreaming. She channeled her creativity through crafting, coloring, and making jewelry. Spending time with her daughters and grandchildren always brought her joy. She was a Christian and enjoyed making people smile. She was a free spirit, a very kind and loving soul who enjoyed doing things on her own terms.

She is survived by three daughters, Amethyst "Ame" Sawyer, Arial Patel and Wesleyann Coker; three sisters, Pat Helget, Brenda Grimsrud and Susan Grimsrud; one brother Vernon Grimsrud, six grandchildren; two great-grandchildren, and many other beloved relatives and friends.

She was preceded in death by her husband; her parents, and one brother, William Allen.

A celebration of life will be Friday July 12, 2019, from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. at the Ohio County Historical Museum in Rising Sun.

Kimberly Goebel

Kimberly Frances Goebel, 54, of Madison died Tuesday, July 9, 2019, at Norton Hospice Inpatient Facility in Louisville.

She was born April 22, 1965, in Madison, to David F. and Melva Jean Ross Goebel. She grew up in downtown Madison on West Main Street and attended Lydia Middleton Elementary School, graduated from Madison Consolidated High School in 1983 and later attended Ivy Tech and Indiana University. She worked early in life at Dieken's Bakery, the City of Madison Water Department, Edelweiss Floral and Haskell & Morrison Funeral Home. She also enjoyed working at Something Simple in downtown Madison. She worked as a secretary and service coordinator for Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre in Madison until her death. She was a member of Prince of Peace Catholic Church and the Phi Beta Psi Sorority. She dearly loved her dog, Kipper, the Wizard of Oz, traveling, watching IU basketball and Cincinnati Reds baseball. She was an awesome cook, dearly loved caring and spoiling her nieces and nephew. She was always willing to help anyone, especially her friends and anyone in need. She fought a battle with Rheumatoid arthritis from the time she was diagnosed at 26. Through her daily pain she kept a smile on her face and served the public with a smile and kindness in her heart.

She is survived by her parents; one brother, Mark Goebel of Madison; two nieces and a nephew, and several aunts, uncles and cousins.

There will be a Mass of Christian burial at 10:30 a.m. Friday at St. Patrick Catholic Chapel. Burial will follow in St. Joseph Cemetery.

Visitation will be at Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre Thursday from 4 p.m. until 8 p.m. and Friday from 9 a.m. until the service.

There will be a sorority service at the funeral home Thursday at 7:15 p.m. conducted by Phi Beta Psi Sorority Sisters.

The rosary will be prayed Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the funeral home.

Expressions of sympathy may take the form of donations to the Jefferson County Animal Shelter, Rheumatoid Arthritis Foundation or Phi Beta Psi Sorority. Cards are available at the funeral home.

Glendis Vest

Glendis Michael "Mike" Vest, 65, of Dupont, Indiana, died Saturday, July 6, 2019, at Baptist Health-Floyd Hospital in New Albany, Indiana.

He was born Feb. 7, 1954, in Paris, Kentucky, to Lawrence M. and Vera Delores Fugate Vest. He lived in Milton, Kentucky, in Cooper's Bottom for many years and was Valedictorian of his graduating class. He was inducted into the U. S. Army in 1976 and rose to the rate of Sergeant and was honorably discharged in 1982. He worked early in life for Ritter Lanes Bowling Alley and Madison Precision in Madison, Indiana. He then worked for many years as a supervisor at Cummin's Engine Company. He was baptized at the First Church of God in Madison. He held membership in the North Vernon Masonic Lodge and Major Samuel Woodfill Post No. 9 of the American Legion in Madison. He loved fishing, hunting, camping, bowling and participating in Native American gatherings. He was a devoted husband, loving dad, brother, papa and uncle.

He is survived by his wife, Teresa Lynn Anderson Vest of Dupont; two sons, Michael Anderson of North Vernon and Steven Vest of Madison; one daughter, Jamie Logsdon of Hanover, Indiana; three sisters, Teresa Ann Vest and Lillian Albert of Milton, and Velvet Durbin of Sellersburg, Indiana; four brothers, Timothy Vest and Rocky Vest, both of Madison, and Wendell Vest and Woody Vest, both of Milton; six grandchildren; four step-grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; several nieces, nephews and other relatives.

He was preceded in death by his parents and one brother, Charles Wilbur Vest.

Funeral services were Wednesday, July 10, 2019, at the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre, in Madison. Interment followed in the Moffett Cemetery in Milton, Kentucky.

A final salute was given at the funeral home and full military honors followed at the Moffett Cemetery by the Major Samuel Woodfill Post No. 9 of the American Legion.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Mike Vest Remembrance Fund. Cards are available at the funeral homes.

FAIR DAYS!

Hauling a load at the fair!

The Jefferson County 4-H Fair is in full swing, and the annual Kiddie Pedal Tractor Pull was one of Wednesday's highlights.

The entrants were separated into four categories and their skills at pulling a sled behind a pedal tractor were tested. The sled was weighted differently for each category. To win first, second or third, participants had to pedal the tractor as far down a roadway as they could. All children who participated received a blue ribbon from one of the 4-H Queen's court and three winners were announced in each category.

In the first group, Nathan Cline of Deputy received first place, Eli Smith of Madison received second place and Camden May of Hanover received third place.

In the second group, Preston Righthouse of Deputy received first place, Michael Gross of Hanover received second place and Carson Owen of Commiskey received third place.

In the third group, Jaxon Owen of Commiskey received first place, Luke Coles of Madison received second place and Robbi Alderman of Madison received third place.

In the fourth group, Sam Cline of Deputy received first place, Nicholas Kirby of Aurora received second place and Izzy Ferguson of Deputy received third place.

Charlie's Beat

Heidi and Joe create the magical, mystical Glad Janice show

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

Within moments of sitting down with Heidi Saunders and Joe DeVito, one of them exclaimed, "Mark Perkins is amazing."

Would you care to elaborate on that, I asked?

"Nope" the other replied. Then Joe interjects, seemingly apropos of nothing, "The V is capitalized!" OK, I'll make a note of that.

Such is the nature of any conversation with this husband and wife team. It's zany, random, and a bit disorienting. Joe and Heidi are a quick-quipping, stream-of-consciousness flowing, dynamic duo full of new ideas and comic observations. And they're also creating some really fun and original music.

Joe is a veteran of the local music scene, starting out with Joey Ernst in a little band called Cup-A-Joe. From there he joined Chris Jesse and Brice Hall playing bass in the band Same Soul and eventually The Wheel.

"That lasted about eight years," he said, "but honestly, the traveling and weekend bar gigs started to get old after a while."

Heidi picked up the story. "I was visiting Madison to see Walt and Jan Dubbeld, who I knew from teaching up in Huntington. They took me to Thomas Family Winery and insisted I meet this long-haired guy. It was a total set-up by Walt and Jan, but they were right about us. Instant attraction.

"Unlike Joe, I was never in a band or performed in front of people. I was more of a shower singer," Heidi said. "But a while back Joe started to push me a little. He started saying I should get out and sing in public."

"She has an amazing style, and a great voice," Joe added. "Anyone who hears her is blown away. Plus her songwriting is excellent. She has a talent for expressing what she is seeing and feeling."

Heidi acknowledged that "singing is a joy" to her.

"It's so different from my general existence where I have to work to maintain emotional balance. When I'm singing I just be. I don't have to think. It just comes through me."

Heidi's singing style can range from powerful – think Amy Winehouse – to a sweet and delicate level, almost like a Billie Holiday. She can scat along with virtually any song, and she's a quick study with new material.

"So a few months ago we just started messing around and playing some stuff. We got Sean Fitzgerald to join us on acoustic guitar, Joe on bass, me doing vocals, and it just sort of happened. The band Glad Janice was born," Heidi said. Eventually we'd like to play festivals. We are working on a set list of 60 to 90 songs so we can play anywhere and fit any style.

"We never do a cover song exactly like the original. We 'Janify' it. We make it uniquely our own. Oh, and there will always be costume changes at a Glad Janice show! That's a big part of the fun."

By the way, the capital V refers to the third letter in Joe's last name. In case you were wondering.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK:

There is a great free benefit event at Red Bicycle Hall this Saturday called V-Stock. It starts at 1 p.m. and runs all day, with Jordan Wilson, Junkbox, Jimmy Davis Band, The Nulydedz and Tim Carroll. On Sunday you should check out Joel Curtis at Mad Paddle Brewery at 4 p.m. Joel is a spellbinding songwriter and singer. I'll be sitting at the front table for that one.

Charlie Rohlfing is a stalwart of the RiverRoots Festival committee, a campfire guitar strummer, and a partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening. Find him out and about or at charlie@madisoncourier.com

AL holds off NL 4-3 for 7th-straight All-Star win

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

CLEVELAND — For one night, the pitchers took back the power.

Hours after an awesome Home Run Derby got everyone buzzing even louder about monster shots and juiced balls, only a couple flew out of Progressive Field on Tuesday.

Instead, Justin Verlander blazed 97 mph heat, Shane Bieber and Aroldis Chapman each struck out the side and the American League slowed a loaded NL lineup 4-3 for its seventh straight win in the All-Star Game.

"I know it's the year of the home run, but pitching dominated today," Colorado slugger Nolan Arenado said.

Sure did — at least until play resumes Thursday.

Facing Christian Yelich, Cody Bellinger and a bunch of boppers, the AL staff combined to strike out 16.

With fans hoping to see a replay of Monday's jaw-dropping aerial show when 312 homers cleared the walls, this became the Arm-Star Game up until the late innings.

Derby champ Pete Alonso of the Mets grounded a two-out, two-run single past Gleyber Torres in the eighth to close the NL's gap. After a double steal put runners at second and third against Cleveland reliever Brad Hand, White Sox catcher James McCann made a tumbling catch on Mike Moustakas' twisting foul pop to end the inning.

Chapman closed to give the AL its 19th win in 22 games, with a tie stuck in there. He got a little encouragement with two outs — Yankees teammate CC Sabathia, honored this week for his contributions on and off the field, strolled to the mound to talk to the flamethrower.

Chapman then struck out Yasmani Grandal for a save, giving the AL an overall 45-43-2 lead in the Midsummer Classic.

No need, either, for the experimental rule that was set to go

A Friend in a High Place

The U-6 Miss HomeStreet/Miss Madison team had a big fan in its corner on Sunday in the form of Indiana Governor Eric Holcomb, a Hanover College graduate. Holcomb hung out with the team before the final heat, getting a chance to sit in the cockpit thanks to crewmember Cindy Shirley (left) and was named an honorary crewmember by driver Jimmy Shane (below) before the race. After Shane picked up the win, he received the Indiana Governor's Cup from Holcomb (above), as well as the APBA Gold Cup. (Staff photos by David Campbell)

US Women's World Cup champions arrive back home

By JAKE SEINER
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK — Megan Rapinoe stepped off the plane with champagne in hand — a fizzy souvenir from a most memorable trip overseas.

"Thank you, France, for the hospitality," the U.S. soccer star said. "But wow, we are very excited to be back in America."

The U.S. women's national team arrived in New York on Monday, a day after beating the Netherlands 2-0 to capture a record fourth Women's World Cup title. Players and staff touched down at about 4:30 p.m. at Newark Liberty International Airport, where they were met with cheers and a banner saying "Congratulations Team USA!" More fans waited at their hotel in Manhattan, and the players are sure to be feted around the city all week, capped with a ticker-tape parade Wednesday up the Canyon of Heroes.

"I think everyone's feeling just incredible right now," said Alex Morgan, who swapped out her imaginary teacup for a gold bottle of bubbly on the flight.

Rapinoe converted a penalty kick in the second half and Rose Lavelle added a goal in the championship game, kicking off a party that carried over to the tarmac in Newark. Players gathered for a toast and posed for pictures as they sang "We Are The Champions."

"We kind of went through stages," Morgan said. "Initially everyone was excited, and then a little hungover, and then we slept a little bit, and then we got up and started just celebrating a little more."

The team got shoutouts across social media — including from President Donald Trump and former Presidents Barack Obama and Bill Clinton, two-time World Cup winner Mia Hamm, Stephen Curry, Snoop Dogg, Ellen DeGeneres and many more. Dozens of politicians offered congratulations, and Congress' top Democrats have invited the team to Washington.

That was all news to players when they landed, since their flight back to the U.S. did not have Wi-Fi.

"Crazily enough in this day and age in 2019, we've been in the dark for nine straight hours," Rapinoe said. "We're sort of catching up on everything."

Wednesday will mark New York's first ticker-tape parade since the women's team won the 2015 World Cup. Long Island's Crystal Dunn was a late cut from the '15 squad, and she's "super excited" to parade through her own city.

"I am such a proud New Yorker," she said. "It's in my blood. It's everywhere I go. It's such a special place. Obviously for this to be our first stop back here when we get back to the United States, it's incredible."

The team will go a 5-game victory tour beginning Aug. 3, when it faces Ireland at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California. The other matches are Aug. 29, Sept. 3, Oct. 3 and Oct. 6.

•All-Star Game

effect: If the game went into extras, each team would've started the 10th with an automatic runner on second base.

Major League Baseball is on a record-shattering pace for homers this season, but no one came close to clearing the walls until Charlie Blackmon connected in the NL sixth to make it 2-1. Texas' Joey Gallo countered with a solo drive in a two-run seventh.

Still, it was a far cry from last year's All-Star Game that featured a record 10 home runs.

Cleveland favorite Michael Brantley had an early RBI double off losing pitcher Clayton Kershaw. Jorge Polanco drove in a run with an infield single for a 2-0 edge in the fifth and another scored on a double-play grounder.

"I wanted to swing the bat early. I had some nervous jitters I wanted to get out," Brantley said.

Winning pitcher Masahiro Tanaka, Lucas Giolito and Shane Greene did their parts to protect the lead with scoreless innings.

"I kind of expected it, to be honest," Cubs slugger Kris Bryant said. "You only see them once, so they have the advantage."

"There are a lot of hard throwers and great pitchers over there. Unless you've seen them before, it's a difficult matchup," he said.

Bieber earned the MVP award in front of a chanting home crowd, striking out Willson Contreras, Ketel Marte and Ronald Acuña Jr. in the fifth with a 1-0 lead.

"It was electric out there, the fans got in it and it was fun," AL manager Alex Cora of the Red Sox said. "And I'm glad that he got the MVP. He plays at this level. He's really good."

Fittingly, the first batter of the game was the guy who leads the majors in home runs — Yelich, the NL MVP with 31 homers at the break, hit leadoff for the first time this year.

Yelich lined out and Verlander quickly fanned Javier Báez and Freddie Freeman to finish his work.

Those lively balls that Verlander is complaining about? Didn't bother him a bit.

Báez came up again in the third with a bright red bat, stepped out of the box and playfully waved to his pal Francisco Lindor in the AL dugout.

NL starter Hyun-Jin Ryu, Mets ace Jacob deGrom and Luis Castillo threw scoreless innings to keep the NL close in the early going.

Pittsburgh dynamo Josh Bell was part of the youngest starting lineup in All-Star history, with the NL crew averaging under 26 years old.

Overall, there were 36 first-timers, a number boosted by the absence of Bryce Harper, Manny Machado, Jose Altuve and several past perennials. And consider this: Of the 16 AL pitchers on the 2017 All-Star roster, zero made the roster this year.

TRIBUTE

All players wore a uniform patch with No. 45 to honor late Angels pitcher Tyler Skaggs. Los Angeles teammates Mike Trout and Tommy La Stella switched their jerseys to Skaggs' number, and there was a pregame moment of silence.

UP NEXT

The regular season resumes on Thursday night with one game, Houston at Texas. All teams are back in action Friday.

With 19 aces, gutsy comeback, Serena reaches Wimbledon semis

By HOWARD FENDRICH
AP Tennis Writer

WIMBLEDON, England — Slowed by a balky ankle, trailing by a service break in the third set of her Wimbledon quarterfinal, Serena Williams appeared to be in trouble Tuesday against an opponent playing the tourney of her life.

Williams was down, yes. But out? No way. And now she is two victories from that 24th Grand Slam title that's been barely eluding her.

Lifting her play a much-needed notch down the stretch to grab the last three games, capping the comeback with her 19th ace — at 121 mph, no less — Williams reached the semifinals at the All England Club by gutting out a 6-4, 4-6, 6-3 win over 55th-ranked Alison Riske.

"I had to just button up and play hard," said Williams, who owns seven Wimbledon titles. "She was playing her heart out."

That she was. Riske, a 29-year-old from Pittsburgh, was appearing in her first major quarterfinal. For Williams, this was No. 51.

That might have made all the difference. It's Williams who possesses boundless muscle memory in these situations, who knows what it takes to come through in the tightest contests on the biggest stages.

"I definitely thought maybe I had a peek here and there at a couple openings, but Serena really upped her level, as only a champion would," Riske said.

"It was really, actually, very interesting for me to be on the opposite end, because I felt her up her game and her intensity," Riske said with a smile. "Yeah, I hope she takes the title now."

Next for the 37-year-old Williams will be a match against 54th-ranked Barbora Strycova of the Czech Republic, who reached her first Grand Slam semifinal at age 33 with a 7-6 (5), 6-1 victory over No. 19 Johanna Konta of Britain.

"A huge achievement for me," said Strycova, who is playing in her 53rd major tournament.

The other semifinal Thursday will be No. 7 Simona Halep of Romania against No. 8 Elina Svitolina of Ukraine.

After edging Riske in singles, Williams cooled down by riding a stationary bike while holding her nearly 2-year-old daughter, Olympia, in one arm. Then Williams went out and joined Andy Murray to win their second-round match in mixed doubles 7-5, 6-3 against Fabrice Martin and Raquel Atawo.

Halep, a former No. 1 who won the 2018 French Open, followed up her elimination of 15-year-old sensation Coco Gauff by defeating Zhang Shuai of China 7-6 (4), 6-1 to get to her second semifinal at Wimbledon. Svitolina will make her debut in that round at any major tournament thanks to beating Karolina Muchova of the Czech Republic 7-5, 6-4.

These sorts of stakes, and this sort of setting, are unfamiliar for Riske, who mistakenly headed to her changeover chair thinking the match's fifth game was over when the score was just 40-15.

Spectators chortled; she grinned and walked back to the baseline.

Even if Williams was hardly perfect, she got by, aided by her greatest-in-the-game serve and Riske's miscues. Most glaringly, Riske double-faulted five times in the final set, at least somewhat a result of trying to do too much against William's superb returns.

"It's no secret that Serena has an amazing serve. But Serena has an equally-as-amazing return," Riske said. "I've never played anyone that has a return like Serena. That put a lot of pressure on my serve."

Still, Riske played tremendously well for most of the afternoon, just as she did while going 14-1 on grass in 2019 until Tuesday.

She won two of Williams' first four service games and finished 5 for 5 on break points. Her deep and flat groundstrokes off both sides jarred Williams repeatedly. Until, that is, Riske wilted late — which was understandable, given that she became the first woman in Wimbledon history to play three-setters in five consecutive matches to open the tournament, according to the WTA.

Williams rolled her right ankle and her movement was hardly ideal. Late in the second set, she was visited by a trainer, who applied extra tape to the ankle. That was during a stretch when Riske, talking to herself between points, claimed four games in a row to take the second set and lead the third by a break at 1-0.

"I thought," Riske said, "I was very close."

Not close enough. Williams was not going to go quietly. She held at love to lead 4-3, and then came the key game. Riske saved a trio of break points and was a point from 4-all after claiming a point when Williams slipped along the well-worn baseline.

First Williams got back to deuce by using a drop shot to set up a volley winner. Then she earned yet another break point on a thrilling 10-stroke exchange, using a drop shot to bring Riske forward and delivering a volley winner. Williams lifted both arms and jutted her jaw. In the stands, her husband leaped from his seat, pointed his index fingers at her and screamed.

On the next point, Riske double-faulted, handing over the last break Williams needed.

After breaking Steffi Graf's record for most Grand Slam trophies in the professional era by winning her 23rd at the 2017 Australian Open while pregnant, Williams took time off. Since returning to the tour last season, she came close to equaling Margaret Court's Slam count of 24 — which was accumulated in part against amateurs — but lost in the finals at Wimbledon and the U.S. Open.

Williams dealt with injuries and illness this year, playing just 12 matches until last week.

"This is the first time since (January) that I actually felt, like, good," she said at her news conference, while Olympia was held by Williams' agent at the back of the room. "It's been a really, really long year for me already, and hard year."

That's true. Also true: She's Serena Williams.

And so here she is, back in Wimbledon's semifinals for the 12th time.

"She's something," Riske said, "our sport has never seen before."

Silver says NBA 'can do better' on free agency, rules

By TIM REYNOLDS
AP Basketball Writer

LAS VEGAS — The NBA knows its rules about when teams can negotiate with free agents are not being followed.

So expect changes on that front for 2020.

The NBA's board of governors discussed ways Tuesday to fix that process — either by changing rules, adding rules or potentially eliminating some rules that may be outdated — and decided that it'll all be worked on over the next several months in an effort to ensure fairness across the league.

"The one strong conviction I have is that we should not have rules that are not strictly enforced," NBA Commissioner Adam Silver said. "And we know that's the case right now. And whether that's by virtue of practice, whether it's because just the world around us has changed, whether it's because players have power that they didn't use to have ... let's step back, let's reset, let's talk to our players' association about what system makes sense going forward."

This year's free-agent negotiating period was to begin on June 30 at 6 p.m. Eastern. But it was known within the first few minutes of that period that several deals had already been agreed upon — and in a few cases, deals were apparently struck even before the negotiating window opened.

There's always been an understanding that some players are talking to other players about teaming up, which is legal. And there's also been the same sort of understanding that teams will talk to their own free agents to strike deals before negotiations are technically supposed to begin.

This year, the rules simply seemed to be ignored.

"It's pointless, at the end of the day, to have rules that we can't enforce," Silver said.

Kevin Durant's decision to join the Brooklyn Nets was one of the major pieces of free-agent news this summer. The Nets said Tuesday that when word leaked before 6 p.m. on June 30 that Durant had made his decision and would announce it on social media, they were concerned — since they had not spoken with him yet.

"We weren't even sure we were getting a meeting that night," Nets general manager Sean Marks said.

Durant eventually came in that night and spoke with the Nets, but after he made the announcement that he would be signing a max contract — four years, $141 million — with the team.

Teams couldn't sign players until the offseason moratorium ended, which this year meant Saturday. Some deals that are known to be happening still aren't completed, meaning teams still have not had the chance to celebrate certain signings or acquisitions. And by now, in some cases, the buzz surrounding those still-unannounced moves is largely gone.

"We have work to do," Silver said.

When the Paul George trade and Kawhi Leonard signing — both players are headed to the Los Angeles Clippers — get finalized, it'll mean five of the 10 All-Star starters from last season will have changed teams this summer. Durant went from Golden State to Brooklyn, Kyrie Irving went from Boston to Brooklyn, Kemba Walker went from Charlotte to Boston, George is leaving Oklahoma City and Leonard is leaving Toronto.

Seeing big names on the move is nothing new in the NBA, of course. Of the 25 players who were on the 2017 All-Star rosters, 17 have changed teams since and seven of them have switched jerseys at least twice.

"Players want to know that they're in a fair system as well, where they have the opportunity to compete," Silver said. "You want to know that the rules are known, and that they're being enforced. Again, I think we have some work to do there when it comes to free agency. There's always been stuff around the edges that have gone on. It may have moved to a new level."

Daly out of British, can use cart in Ky.

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

John Daly is free to ride a cart during the week of the British Open — just not at Royal Portrush.

Daly's manager said Tuesday he is likely to play the Barbasol Championship next week in Kentucky, and the two-time major champion with osteoarthritis in his right knee already has been granted a cart to use in the PGA Tour event.

Andy Pazder, the chief tournaments and competition officer for the PGA Tour, said Daly late last year was approved to use a cart through 2019 at PGA Tour events and PGA Tour Champions events that require walking.

Daly, who has not played a regular PGA Tour event since The Greenbrier last summer, also is contemplating the Barracuda Championship in Reno, Nevada, the following week.

The R&A announced Tuesday that Daly had withdrawn from the British Open "due to a medical condition."

The nature of that condition — be it his arthritic knee or a spider bite — was not entirely clear.

Daly has been dealing with arthritis in his knee, and he says he also was diagnosed as diabetic. That led him to request a cart for the PGA Championship at Bethpage Black under the Americans with Disabilities Act, which the PGA of America approved after Daly submitted the required medical information.

The R&A rejected his request for a cart over the weekend, saying it felt walking was an integral part of the tournament. "We must also ensure, as far as possible, the challenge is the same for all players in the field," it said.

Parks Department names Bob Kring Award winners

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

The Madison Parks Department honored 28 young men and women for the outstanding sportsmanship during the 2019 season by awarding them the Bob Kring Memorial Sportsmanship Awards.

This honor is named in memory of Bob Kring, who as a longtime employee of the Madison Parks Department and a major contributor to the local baseball scene.

The criteria for this honor is that the recipient always gives 100 percent effort, plays the game the right way, respects teammates and those on the opposing teams, and plays hard and has fun.

Award winners were:

Girls Rookie — Dixie Helton, Aliza Mehl and Daylee Smith.
Boys Rookie — Parker Hamilton, Patrick Kahn, Kellen Martin, Mason Wells and Amari Wright.
Girls Minor — Abbi Broadus, Layla Collins, Haley Ferguson, Paisley Hendricks, Kendal Holbrook and Madalyn Yarling.
Boys Minor — John Bachman, Brock Brandon, Vincent Chen, Colton Deputy, Elijah Norman, Caden Vaught and Talon Wynn.
Girls Major — Hillarie Buchanan, Hannah Richart and Mashya Wells.
Boys Major — Colton O'Neal, Zachary Rice, Camden Sever and Adam Traylor.

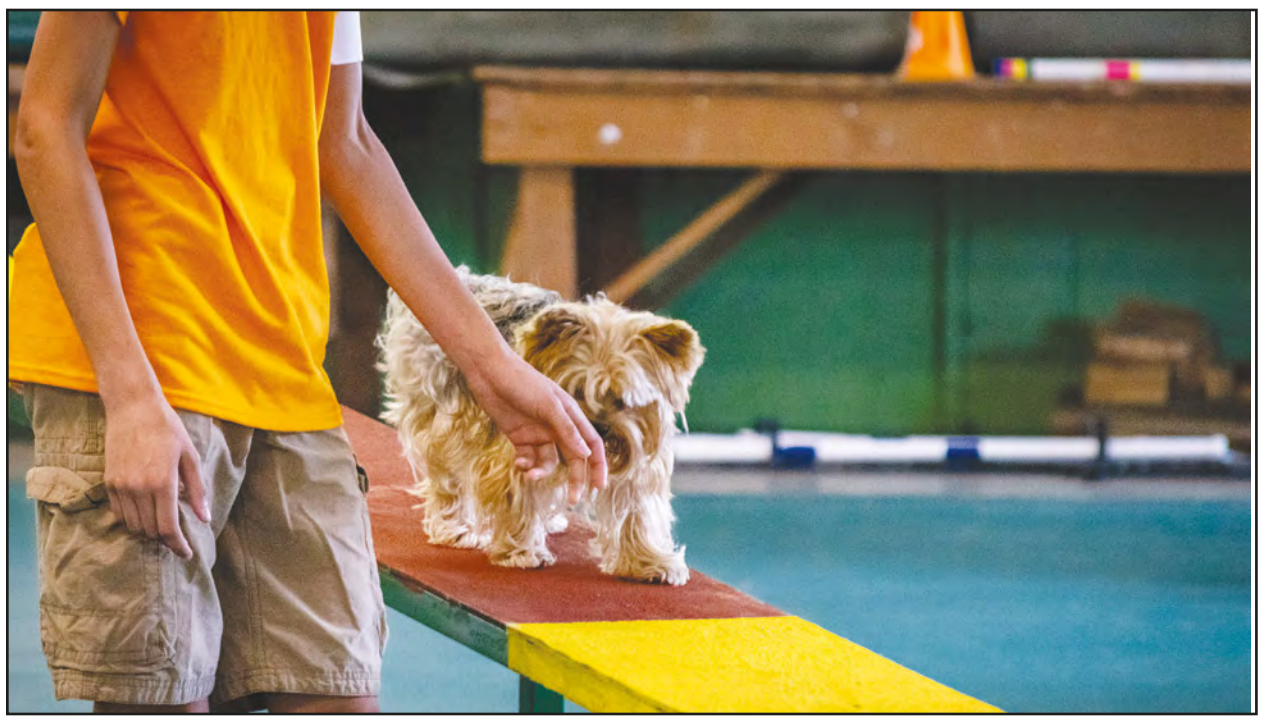
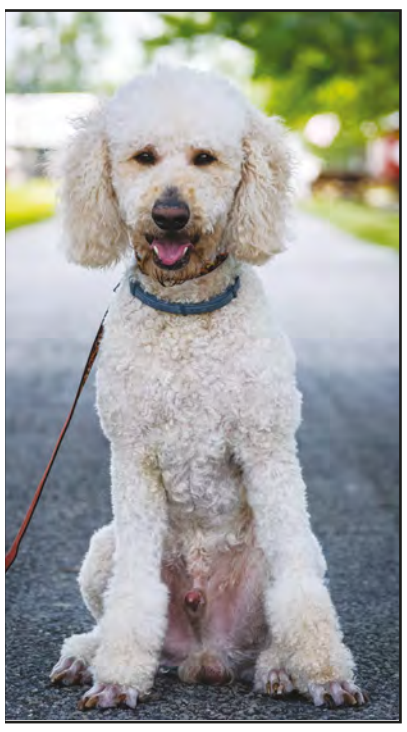
Dogs show agility at 4-H fair





Everyone's best friends show off

4-H members and their four-legged friends were in the spotlight Friday, July 5 for the competition at the Jefferson County 4-H Fair. The dog agility program is based on guidelines from the American Kennel Club rules. The canines had to be at least 17 months old and also had to show in obedience training to be eligible for the agility competition. These photos of club members and their furry friends were taken by Haniah Kring, a member of the Home Grown 4-H club, who participates in the 4-H Photography project. The fair continues through this week.

PETS OF THE WEEK

DEAN

Dean is a three- to five-year-old mixed breed dog. He is good boy who sits pretty in his kennel. He always wants to play and will require a fenced-in yard or lots of walks. If yoy are active or like to hike, Dean is the perfect dog. He is neutered and up-to-date on his rabies vaccination, which makes him $55 total to adopt.

The shelter is still in need of hard cat food. Indoor formulas seem to do best with the adult cats and hard kitten food of any kind is needed.

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has 6 dogs or puppies, and 27 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com

Normal shelter hours are Monday, Thursday and Friday from noon to 5 p.m., Wednesday from 1 p.m. to 7 p.m., Saturday from noon to 4 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 3 p.m. It is closed Tuesday. The shelter number is (812) 273-1788 and the email is animal.shelter39@jefferson-county.in.gov

All cats and kittens are $45 off unless they are already spay or neutered. Discount is courtesy of the Animal Shelter and the Jefferson County Humane Society.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the "Walk for a Dog" or "Woof-Trax" app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison, IN 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. Recent donations have helped get treatment for a beagle with a skin infection and a cat with wounds. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

For animal control issues in Madison, call (812) 265-3347. For animal control issues in Hanover and Jefferson County, call (812) 265-2648.

HEM

Hem is a three-year-old large buff male who is lazy and is looking for a nice lap to lay on. He likes being talked to and loved on. When at the shelter, Hem lays in his bed until he is sure visitors are coming to his cage. Then, he will get up and come to the door. Hem is not very talkative and is more of a quiet and relaxed guy. He is neutered and up-to-date on his rabies vaccination, which makes him $45 total to adopt.

BRIDGE

DO NOT FORGET THE TARGET

Nido Qubein, a businessman and motivational speaker, said, "Nothing can add more power to your life than concentrating all your energies on a limited set of targets."

Bridge defenders usually do not need to win many tricks to defeat a contract. When the dummy appears, both of them should ask where they will find those winners. In today's deal, for example, West leads the heart two against four spades. What should East do?

North had two sensible responses to his partner's one-spade opening. He might have bid four diamonds, a splinter showing four or more spades, at least game-going values and a singleton (or void) in diamonds. Instead, he chose the Jacoby Forcing Raise so that he could learn more about his partner's hand. When South jumped to four spades to indicate a minimum opening with no side-suit singleton or void, North passed, hoping that his partner had some wasted values in diamonds -- and he did!

East knew that his partner had led a singleton. (Remember, South had denied a void in the auction.) So East rapidly won with his heart ace and returned the heart three. After West ruffed and shifted to a low club, declarer won with dummy's king and played a trump. East took that trick and led a third heart, but South ruffed high, drew East's remaining trump and claimed.

If East had wondered about the fourth defensive trick, he would have seen the necessity for a club shift at trick two. Then, after giving West his heart ruff at trick four, East could receive a club ruff at trick five.

Consider the alternatives.

Wanted: Real customer service

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: Am I the only one who feels that life is too complicated these days and that I feel absolutely powerless when it comes to calling a big company to get service? I am old enough to remember the days when we bought a television, put it in the car, drove home, plugged it in, played with the "rabbit ears" for a minute and then were able to watch TV.

Today, when you buy a television, it is a major project. If it's a big-screen TV, someone usually has to deliver it, and then you need to make an appointment with an installer. It always takes much longer for them to install than they plan.

Then there is the cable company. This morning I waited for over an hour for the cable guy to arrive. After working on the TV for more than an hour, he said he had the wrong parts and box and needed to go back to his office to get new supplies.

My wife had made lunch for me, but I told her to wait until this guy was finished. Then, after he left to get the new parts, we got a chance to eat, though we were both watching the clock.

Two hours later, the man returned and, after another hour, finally got everything set up.

Of course, I appreciate that the television quality and choice of channels are a million times better than those days of rabbit ears, but I feel so frustrated by the feeling of powerlessness I have if something goes wrong. You may as well call the federal government in terms of not getting a person. They have one recording after another, push this button or that, stay on hold for 20 minutes, and then maybe, if you are lucky, you will be able to talk to a live human.

The airlines are the same way. I remember the old days when I would call an airline, someone would answer the phone, book my flight or whatever, and we would both be on our way. Now, in the "new and improved" technological society, there is never any personal customer service. Everything is automated and impersonal.

While we have had improvements because of technology, we have had regression in terms of customer service and personal attention.

I started writing this letter out of frustration with our cable company, but the more that I wrote, the angrier I got in thinking about how impersonal business has become. You always are the voice of common sense, and I'm wondering if you have any suggestions. — Helpless and Powerless

Dear Helpless and Powerless: Help is on the way, and it is coming in the shape of you discovering your own power. While you might not have the power to fix your television immediately, you do have the power to change your perspective. You were able to have a pleasant, quiet and electronic-free lunch with your wife. Time without TV can sometimes be a nice break.

However, I agree with you that automated "customer service" is a contradiction in terms, though it has become common practice today. Customer service should be all about the customer feeling respected and heard. You are not alone in your frustrations.

We have seen many incredible advances because of modern technology, but the same cannot be said about typical customer service. Imagine if a company could offer the efficiencies of modern improvements with Marshall Field's old maxim from more than a century ago, "The customer is always right." The companies that can manage both are the ones that will emerge as victors in the future.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now!
